What is to be will be, but what is to be confuses me! Why is it that most of us wake up and go about the day in our usual way and, yes, go to bed and repeat our actions the next day? The fact is that each and all of us are subject to some unexpected change in, say, our routine. It can happen in seconds! A personal injury totally unexpected, can undercut our usual experiences! (In this particular case a broken collarbone of a very close relative provided the change.) There are so many other factors that intercede into our very individual lives expectations that injury is simply just one of them!! We know of long-time established businesses that are suddenly sold, and the entire management and workers disappear as if by magic in less than a week! GEE! What are we saying? LIFE HAS CHANGES!

HGC

You know what? Think for a minute or two! It's about the changing season: March has come. And April is in step right behind! In the overview of time those two months are significant to us in Michigan. They are foretellers of an incoming of a handshake to spring! No, it's not an instant exciting change to dance about but we can at least wiggle our toes in the expectation of what's now actually underway! For winter. Itself has its merits: cozy indoor warmth, the sheer beauty of snow, but after a while we find ourselves yearning to enter into spring! And our good henchman March and April have now arrived to fulfill our wish! Pat them on their heads and thank them! They are good guys! DON'T FORGET: they do know how to usher in, yes! Spring! Welcome! March and April- oh gosh yes! Welcome to you and thanks.

HGC

In the 1920's when the Walled Lake telephone book contained perhaps nine 5x8" pages (including ads!) and every third line was a party line, things were different. We remember our signal as two long and two short rings. One must remember... people then didn't have the distractions of TV and certainly not cellular phones. In our close nit, rural, neighborly town, most had a real interest in what was going on. Many had no compunction about lifting up their receivers to keep, say, abreast of things. And then, again, if it were a "party line" how could one tell when conversations were through? So the ever present click of various receivers being picked up and put down was often expected. It served as a relief, too, when sudden news came that the probability was that it had already been heard and, in fact, was in the excited process of being given many others then and there!

As we said before, we remember a man pumping water at the next door neighbor's and heard his phone's special ring. He saw the neighbor pick up her receiver- tapped on her window and said: "I'll take it here, sis." No rancor. No fuss. Just humorous understanding.

Thanks for the Memories

Personal memories: our cat walking armpit deep in snow; a hundred different puppies through the years nuzzled and loved; the magic of Guy Lombardo's music across summer's moonlit waters of Walled Lake... the din and beat of roller skaters at Walled Lake's amusement park...an early morning science class bird watch walk especially the plaintive cry of the Hermit thrush... many red-orange sunsets seemingly dropping into the lake itself! The riot of colors in fall; the soft crunch of new snow; the promise and delight of many springs. Yes. Thanks.

Dreams

Sparks of wonderment igniting my spirit,
Inspirational guideposts lighting my way,
Tiny dancing fairies weaving through my mind,
Enchanting, taunting, tugging my
imagination,
Explosions of joy lifting me upward,
Inner callings pushing me on,
Waves of inspiration lapping my soul,
The oneness of all; the identity of my Existence; the essence of my being.
Without them I cease.

She was a nine year old girl when I was 10.
She was cute as a button and was in a dance school with my sister. She would chase boys about shaking a stick. When she came towards me, I would snarl at her and she'd back away in puzzlement.
She told my sister I was hateful. (But I was deeply

Cruz Hearing will provide a comprehensive hearing evaluation to determine if you are a qualified candidate for this program. Not everyone will meet required qualifications. All applicants who meet qualifications will be asked to evaluate the new digital hearing aids for a determined length of time. There is no charge for participation. At the end of the evaluation period, participants will return the new digital hearing aids and be asked to answer various questions regarding their experience. Participants may, however, decide to keep the new digital hearing aids at a substantial savings for their participation. If you or someone you know may be interested, please contact one of the three convenient Cruz Hearing locations serving Southeast Michigan.

Applicants will be accepted until 30 qualified candidates are found
