

November & December 2005 ISSUE OF THIS TINY NOVEL NEWSPAPER-IT'S FREE

Memories

Editor's Note

Sunny October had to go, (it always does) and now we have November and December on our calendar! Is this exciting? Yes we think so. Because these 2 months usher in so many things to do. The weather becomes to be winter, November and December cart with them a lot of things that have become dear to us. Hmmm let's see... final football games, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas. It also brings a coziness to all of us. White snow, lights up our lives, especially for the youngsters who play in it and make snowmen and snow forts with it. (Aw come on. Snow has a lot of flaws too. But, in fairness, it has its good side also. We are just trying to show the good side of it.) Oh yes watching a game of basketball in a warm gym on a cold night is fun too.

The "Good Old Days?" Much of today's news briefs of grief seems to indicate that yesterdays were yes, the "Good Old Days..." For instance bankruptcies of billion dollar firms (once considered as an impossible happening) yet everyday happening now. Treasured pension funds now underfunded or simply by passed. Yes and health insurance funds being as not now properly covered. And who ever heard of the massive suicide endeavors. (appearing today but not undertaken say forty years ago? Gosh. Pensions, and vacation pay seem to be going away and tossed to the winds. We will overcome these things but whoever thought they could even happen today? Well, they did. But here's where the U.S.A. must and will repair damages to itself and emerge again as a political wonder of the world in its hardihood.

Advertisers: Don't forget that Walled Lake Gazette does put out 3000 copies every 2 months. We remember... The "Town Pump" which was located on Liberty St. & East Lake Dr. It was a center of real interest to the townsfolk. A gathering place to get water and consequently to meet neighbors too. (It was there a long time). Being there, it was a sure bet that many generations met their mates during their visits to the "Pump". It's gone now, but some of us remember it. It had a little roof on it and a rounded base of stone. At present, we all have an access to water, but we quietly obtain it and it doesn't involve others at all. But it sure once did! We had a photo of the "town Pump". We may find it and show it in another issue.

A grandfather is talking to his grandson a few days after the terrorist attacks of 9/11. Looking at his grandson, the grandfather says "I feel like I have two wolves barking inside of me. The first wolf is filled with anger, hatred, bitterness and revenge. The second wolf is filled with love, kindness, happiness and forgiveness." The grandson looks up at his grandfather and says, "Which wolf do you think will win, Grandpa?" And the grandfather responds, "which ever one I feed."

Thanksgiving

A groaning table of things galore from our garden, from the store.

Family love that gathers round the steaming turkey, reddish-brown

A sense of peace, of rest, of ease as one strolls through the fallen leaves.

Inside now, the warmth and cheer bring Thanksgiving, oh, so near.

The dog is in. the TV's going. Outside, it's still snowing.

A little bit of us does squirm in inside coziness, in turn.
